2018 GLOBAL HEALTH SYMPOSIUM

The Resilient City: Preparing for a Healthy Future

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 2018

Henry Ford Hospital
Detroit, MI

HOSTED BY:

CME PROVIDED BY HENRY FORD HEALTH SYSTEM
About the Symposium

BACKGROUND

The purpose of this Annual Symposium is to bring together those who are dedicated to improving the health of the underserved globally, to provide networking and collaboration opportunities, and also to explore the intersection between work being conducted domestically and internationally.

The Global Health Symposium launched in 2014, and over the years, has addressed the themes of partnerships, sustainability, capacity building, and impact. The Symposium strongly emphasizes synergy between global and local models, including local health for underserved populations within its definition of global health. Each year, prominent international and local experts share their knowledge and experiences with Symposium participants via interactive panel discussions. Poster presentations on global health research and programs are a key feature of the event.

2018 THEME: Given the world’s increasingly urban population, and the myriad associated challenges – particularly ensuring equitable access to health – the Fifth Annual Symposium will focus on best practices for creating a resilient and healthy city. Focused interdisciplinary approaches and partnerships (i.e. public health, urban planning, policy, and more) will help tackle complex topics such as housing and air pollution – and their impact on health.

We hope you join us at our five year celebration of the Global Health Symposium!

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

The Planning Committee is seeking thematically related abstracts for poster presentations. The “Call for Abstracts” will be open until August 6, 2018. The poster presentations will be an integral part of the program agenda and will contribute to the knowledge shared among southeast Michigan academic institutions, hospitals, community organizations, and others. In addition, authors will have their work published in the Global Health Symposium Program Book. Complete information on submission of abstracts can be found on page 5 of this brochure.

TARGET AUDIENCE

The 2018 Symposium is open to all faculty, clinicians, administrators, students, residents, fellows, pharmacists, nurses, social workers, as well as others interested in global and local health.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Detailed information about registration and other logistics can be found on page 9 of this brochure.
