A RICH EAP HERITAGE

The Henry Ford Employee Assistance Program (EAP) has a rich legacy of providing employers with quick-response solutions to behavioral challenges impacting employee productivity — while delivering a solid return on your financial investment. An EAP program helps ensure the emotional well-being of your employees so they can contribute to the growth of your company. This confidential service helps employees with personal difficulties, including emotional problems, substance abuse issues, relationship and family crises, and other everyday worries, before the problems spill into the workplace.

WHY DO I NEED AN EAP?
Most Companies Invest in EAP Services to Improve Bottom Line

Employees are your most valuable resource. When they are not working to full capacity, your business suffers. Employers are losing billions of dollars due to the direct and indirect costs related to the emotional health of their employees. In fact, the primary reason that 70 percent of all U.S. companies and 90 percent of Fortune 500 companies purchase EAP services is to improve their bottom line.

Today’s employers recognize that in a hectic world, their employees can experience life- or work-related issues that threaten the:
- Productivity and efficiency of their work
- Ability to be their very best at work and at home
- Quality of their lives and wellness
- Lives of their co-workers

An effective EAP can help companies control costs and foster a work culture that supports total health and wellness, reducing the amount of time employees take away from work – and helping to ensure that when they return they do so with renewed strength and optimal emotional well-being.
A SOLID INVESTMENT

Employers See Significant Cost Savings From EAP

An EAP offered through a third-party vendor places very little burden on you, while providing an added benefit to your employees:

- The ROI for EAPs is consistent with other kinds of worksite health promotion and wellness programs.
- When compared to the cost of health benefits, the cost for an EAP represents less than a third of one percent of the total employee health care benefits spent at most companies.
- According to benefit consultant Watson Wyatt, between 60-80 percent of employees who access their company’s EAP don’t end up using additional mental health services in subsequent months.
- Many corporate clients are considering increasing the number of EAP sessions or services they offer in an effort to reduce demand for other mental health services.
- The U.S. Department of Labor reports that for every dollar invested in an EAP, employers generally save anywhere from $5 to $16.

These cost savings are generated from:

- Reduced workplace absenteeism, presenteeism and tardiness
- Fewer accidents on the job
- Less management time taken up by employee problems
- Improved morale and productivity
- Decreased employee turnover and related replacement cost
- Fewer short-term disability claims
- Fewer lawsuits
